Job Purpose

Life on the Edge (LotE) is a multi-partner project, led by South Devon National Landscape, with their main partner, Buglife, along with South West Coast Path Association, National Trust and Doorstep Arts. With support from National Lottery Heritage Fund, LotE aims to restore viable populations of some of the UK's rarest insects living along the South Devon coast between Berry Head and Wembury.

Involving people in the conservation of these special species is core to the project, with a programme of upskilling, empowering and training through the 'Learning with LotE' workstream. LotE is committed to engaging people to make a difference for nature and the trainee roles assists in forming that important link between communities and conserving species along the south devon coast.

The LotE Conservation Trainee will assist with events, specialist invertebrate ecological surveying and practical tasks involving volunteers and interacting with the public explaining the importance of the project target species and promoting the project. Trainees will also assist in meeting with farmers and landowners to develop landscape enhancements plans, which will involve bespoke conservation interventions to benefit project species. There is significant overlap between the conservation and communities workstreams, involving people in all areas of project activity. The Conservation Trainee can expect to be involved in works which will complement the community engagement programme.

LotE trainees must willing to work outdoors, in sometimes challenging conditions, in a variety of locations along the South Devon Coast, some of which may be remote areas. Trainees will be able to learn from project staff and will have opportunities to develop their skills and knowledge as well as work under their own initiative with support from project team.

All interested candidates are encouraged to join an online webinar session to learn more about the Life on the Edge project, the trainee scheme and ask any questions in a short Q&A session. This will be held on Zoom at 1800 on Monday 28th July – please get in contact lote@southdevon-nl.org.uk for the link.

Interviews will be held at Follaton House on Wednesday 20th August.
